State Representative Rachel Williams announces her candidacy for Wyoming Secretary of State

Cody, WY – State Representative Rachel Williams today announced her campaign for Wyoming Secretary of State, emphasizing her commitment to upholding election integrity, promoting pro-business policies, and protecting the state's resources from foreign threats.

A former law enforcement officer, Representative Williams is a devoted wife and mother of two. She and her family reside at the eastern gateway to Yellowstone National Park, where she actively serves as a billet mom for the Yellowstone Quake Hockey Team—balancing family, community involvement, and her steadfast representation of core Wyoming values.

First elected in 2020, Representative Williams now chairs the House Labor, Health & Social Services Committee and serves as Chairman of the Wyoming Freedom Caucus. She has established herself as a fearless champion for conservative principles.

"As Wyoming's chief election officer, the Secretary of State plays a vital role in ensuring our elections are secure, fair, and transparent, giving every voter full confidence in the process," Williams said. "I plan to continue the work I started in the Wyoming House to protect the integrity of our elections and build lasting trust with Wyoming voters."

In addition to election oversight, the Secretary of State regulates business registrations, including corporations, LLCs, and partnerships, as well as securities across Wyoming. Williams pledged to keep the Cowboy State "open for business" by aggressively reducing red tape, streamlining processes, and preserving one of the nation's lowest tax burdens. These pro-growth policies, she noted, attract investment, drive innovation, and create high-quality job opportunities so future generations can thrive in Wyoming.

"My record in the Wyoming House of Representatives demonstrates my dedication to these principles," Williams added. "I earned a 100% rating from the Club for Growth for advancing free-market policies and limited government, along with a strong 93% lifetime rating from the American Conservative Union for consistent support of conservative values, economic freedom, and fiscal responsibility."

Williams is also committed to safeguarding Wyoming's land, natural resources, and critical infrastructure from threats by foreign adversaries, particularly China.

About Rachel Williams

Rachel Williams, a former law enforcement officer holding a Master's degree in criminal justice, is a dedicated wife and mother of two. She and her family live near the eastern entrance of Yellowstone National Park. Elected in 2020 to represent House District 50 in the Wyoming Legislature, she currently chairs the House Labor, Health & Social Services Committee and serves as Chairman of the Wyoming Freedom Caucus.

A leading voice for life, Rachel has sponsored more pro-life legislation than anyone in Wyoming history. A strong defender of Second Amendment rights and named one of the most conservative members of the Wyoming House every year by CPAC's Center for Legislative Accountability, Williams is also a former fellow of the Club for Growth.
